Milam family files suit charging deputy, county

According to a position filed in Federal District Court Monday, the Milam family's legal team has filed a lawsuit against the county, alleging that the deputy involved in the shooting of the family member was acting in a grossly negligent manner.

The Milam family has been in the process of negotiating a settlement with the county since the incident occurred in May. However, they have not been satisfied with the county's offer and have decided to pursue legal action.

First Things First

Dear readers:

Thank you for your continued support and loyalty. We appreciate your trust in us to provide you with the latest and most accurate news and information.

This week, we bring you the latest updates on the local community, including the latest events, celebrations, and news. We also feature interviews with local personalities and experts to keep you informed and entertained.

Our top story this week is about the annual Spring festival, which is expected to attract thousands of visitors. We have interviews with local politicians and festival organizers, who share their insights on the event and its significance.

We also have a special segment on the recent improvements made to the local library, which has been renovated to provide a more comfortable and modern environment for its patrons.

We hope you enjoy reading this week's edition. We value your feedback and suggestions, and we strive to improve our service to you.

Best regards,
