Proper flag-flying etiquette should always be followed

While flying the flag of the United States is a great way to show your patriotism, it's important to do it right. The U.S. flag should always be displayed with the stars in the upper left corner (landward). When hanging a flag on a pole, the flag should be at half-mast when mourning the dead, or when the flag is at half-mast, the flag should be at half-mast when mourning the dead. When hanging a flag on a wall, the flag should be at half-mast when mourning the dead.
