Cordray: ETMC leading contender for PGH lease

By Sherry Knowse

The Panola Watchman

According to sources familiar with the management of Panola General Hospital, it is being considered by East Texas Medical Center (ETMC) as a possible site for its new hospital to serve the hospital's patient needs.

On Tuesday, Dr. John Cordray, the CEO of ETMC, visited the East Texas Medical Center in the hopes of learning more about the potential for a new hospital in the area. During his visit, Cordray met with members of the hospital's staff and discussed the possibility of a new facility.

In recent months, there has been speculation about the future of Panola General Hospital, which is currently owned by the hospital's parent company, East Texas Medical Center. Some have suggested that ETMC may be looking to expand its presence in the area.

City agrees to begin landfill project

By Daniel Humphries

The Panola Watchman

The city of Panola has reached an agreement with the Texas Department of Environmental Quality (TDEQ) to begin work on a new landfill project.

The landfill, which will be used to dispose of solid waste generated by the city, is scheduled to open in 2024. The city will be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the facility.

Three major projects are planned for the new landfill. These include a new waste transfer station, a new gas recovery system, and a new leachate treatment system.

The landfill is expected to have a lifespan of 30 years, during which it will serve as a disposal site for the city's waste.
