City joins task force

For the first time in several years, the City of Tunnel Springs will be a part of a task force dedicated to fighting the war on drugs. Tunnel Springs Police Chief Dwaine Ransdell announced last week that the city will participate in the Northeast Texas Regional Drug Task Force.

The task force, explained Ransdell, brings together police and sheriffs from several counties working together to fight drug trafficking.

"We have a new commander, and we are doing a good job," said Ransdell.

"We really need to do something to combat drug traffic in the city and with the task force to better organizations, in the future we will work together," said Ransdell.

"We are working together, and we are not alone," said Ransdell.

Myth: Some have tried to fool you with statements that you will be saddled with a forty year bond. This is false.
Fact: The fact is this is a 20 year bond to be paid in a period of 20 years or less.

Myth: Some have tried to fool you with statements about the location of our children’s future school with statements about losing our heritage.
Fact: This new location was carefully chosen with our Beckville Heritage in mind, keeping the location of our children’s new school within 700 feet of the current location, as well as the current name of our children’s school with our children’s new campus to proudly carry on the name “Sunset Elementary”.

Myth: Some have tried to fool you with statements that this cost on our taxes will be too high.
Fact: How much are our children worth? The cost to taxpayers will amount to pennies.

Question: How will this affect the residential homesteads of people over 65?
Answer: None. Their taxes are frozen.

Applicants can reinstate certificates with continuing education credits

Private practice applicants who have failed to meet continuing education requirements for their certificate of registration (CRN) can now reinstate their certificates. The new policy, effective immediately, allows applicants to request reinstatement by submitting evidence of completed continuing education credits.

To apply for reinstatement, applicants should contact the New York State Education Department at 1-800-343-3156. They will need to provide proof of completed credits, such as a certificate of completion from a university or a professional organization.

Applicants who have not completed the required Continuing Education Units (CEUs) as of the date of their application will be required to complete the necessary CEUs prior to receiving reinstatement of their certificate.

Judy Rosenthal, director of the New York State Education Department, commented, "We understand that life events can interfere with the ability to complete CEUs, and we are committed to helping applicants get back on track."

Dear Santa.

I have a good Christmas because I helped my mom with my room and I helped my dad with the trash. When my mom asked me to do the washing I did it. I took care of my puppy when my mom told me to. When my mom told me to pick up my room I would and my mom said "now I would be happy." I help my mom and dad feed the cat and I help my dad walk the dogs and I help my mom do the dishes where she wouldn't do them. I wish I knew the lesson I learned and I helped my puppy. I drew from the spoon with some rocks and I want a new puppy.

Thank you,
