BISD teacher files suit

By Sherry Koonce

The PANOLA WATCHMAN

A 34-year-old school teacher has filed a suit against the BISD in a continuing effort to have her declared blind. Ms. Miller, who has been working in the district for 11 years, claims she was denied a promotion to a director position in 1998.

The suit was filed in the Panola County 70th District Court and seeks monetary damages for alleged intentional discrimination.

A spokeswoman for the BISD could not be reached for comment.

Six horses perish in barn fire

By Andrea Shank

The PANOLA WATCHMAN

Six horses died in a barn fire early Thursday morning at a barn in the 800 block of Taylor Road in the east part of Carthage.

The fire started in a small barn on the property, and within 15 minutes it had engulfed the entire barn. The barn contained four large stalls for horses and contained a tack room, a storage area, and a feed room.

The barn was owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, who live in the area. They were not home at the time of the fire and did not return home immediately.

The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Panola County Sheriff's Department.

OSB plant starts production

By Teresa Cage

THE PANOLA WATCHMAN

The first panel of the new OSB plant was produced on Monday, March 25, 1996, at the new facility in Carthage.

The plant, which was built by Polymers, Inc., is located on the former site of the Carthage Lumber Company. The plant produces oriented strand board (OSB), a type of building material used in the construction of flooring, siding, and panels.

The plant is expected to create 100 jobs and bring $100 million in new investment to the area.

The plant is owned by Southern Forest Products, a company based in Alabama.

Southside Baptist presents Easter pageant

Southside Baptist Church of Carthage is proud to present its unique Easter Pageant on April 15, in the church beginning at 11 a.m. The title of the pageant is "Jesus Is Risen!" and it will be a wonderful opportunity for all ages to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The pageant is based on a contemporary play that tells the story of Jesus Christ's life, death, and resurrection through the eyes of people from all walks of life. It features a cast of over 100 performers, including children, youth, and adults, who will bring the story to life with music, dance, and drama.

The pageant is free and open to the public. Visitors are asked to bring a musical instrument to join in the final chorus of the pageant. Food and drinks will be available before and during the pageant.

To get involved, visitors are invited to sign up for a role in the pageant at the church office this week. Kim Williams, church office manager, says, "We need volunteers to help with the stage setup, sound, and lighting. If you're interested, please sign up at the church office or call Kim at 593-2444."

For more information about the pageant, contact Kim Williams at 593-2444 or visit the church's website at www.southsidebc.org.
