THAT'S A FACT

Washington, D.C. (AP) - The U.S. Census Bureau said Thursday that the nation's population has grown to 283 million people, a 2 percent increase since 1990. The bureau said the growth is slower than in the past, but still significant.

The population growth rate has been slowing in recent years, but still the United States has the second-largest population in the world after China, according to the bureau. The U.S. population is expected to reach 300 million by 2020.

The bureau said the population increase is due to a combination of factors, including immigration, natural increase, and changes in the age structure of the population. The bureau also said the population growth rate is expected to slow further in the future.

The bureau released its latest estimates of the nation's population on Thursday, as part of its ongoing efforts to track the country's population.

The bureau's population estimates are based on a combination of data from various sources, including the Census Bureau's American Community Survey, which collects information about households and their characteristics, and the bureau's National Population Survey, which collects data on people's characteristics through interviews.

The bureau's estimates are intended to provide a picture of the country's population at a given point in time, and are used by government agencies, businesses, and other organizations to plan for the future.

The bureau's population estimates are made available on its website at www.census.gov.

The bureau's estimates are not intended to reflect the actual population at a given point in time, but rather to provide a picture of the population that is useful for planning purposes. The bureau's estimates are based on the best available data, but are subject to some error.

The bureau's population estimates are made available on an annual basis, and are updated periodically to reflect changes in the country's population.

The bureau's population estimates are not intended to be used as the sole source of information on the country's population, but rather as a supplement to other sources of information.

The bureau's population estimates are not intended to be used for legal or financial purposes, but rather as a supplement to other sources of information.

The ministry of reconciliation

Background Scripture: 2 Corinthians 5:18-20

Jesus declared: "All are sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus. 19 If anyone is in Christ Jesus, the new creation has come: the old has gone, the new is here! 20 All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ and gave us the ministry of reconciliation.

Energy Ed
Summer is Coming

Get the most out of this summer season. Use Energy Ed's guidelines to ensure a safe and enjoyable experience.

Be Prepared for the Summer Heat:
1. Stay cool:
- Use air conditioning or fans to maintain a comfortable temperature.
- Dress in lightweight, loose clothing.
- Stay hydrated by drinking plenty of water.
- Avoid strenuous activities during the heat of the day.

2. Prevent Sunburn:
- Use sunscreen with a high SPF and reapply throughout the day.
- Wear protective clothing and hats.
- Seek shade and avoid direct sunlight.

3. Be Safe Around Fire:
- Follow fire safety guidelines and regulations.
- Keep flammable materials away from heat sources.
- Use fire extinguishers only in emergency situations.

4. Be Prepared for Emergencies:
- Have a plan in place for evacuation or shelter in place.
- Stay informed about weather conditions and local emergencies.
- Keep emergency supplies on hand, including water, food, and medications.
