Grossly unfair

The South Texas Humane Development Corporation's (STHDC) recent announcement to close its operations is a grossly unfair and poorly timed decision. The corporation, which has been working to improve the lives of animals in the region, is closing its doors due to financial difficulties. However, the timing of this decision is unfortunate, as it comes just as the community is beginning to see the positive impact of their work.

The corporation's closure will result in the loss of important services for animals in need. STHDC has been instrumental in providing veterinary care, spaying and neutering, and education to the community. The closure of this organization will leave a significant void.

You and your Money

By Sherry B. Landers

When you open a bank account, don't forget to consider the fees associated with it. Some banks charge monthly maintenance fees, while others require a minimum balance to avoid fees. It's important to read the fine print and understand the terms of your account.

SELDING, THE NEWS

Slanted programming a tool

In a letter to the editor, a concerned citizen expresses frustration with the bias they've noticed in local news programming. They argue that the content being presented is not representative of the community and is skewed towards a particular viewpoint.

The writer calls for a more balanced approach in news reporting, suggesting that news organizations should strive to provide a fair and accurate representation of events.

Vital safeguard

A crucial aspect of our education system is the protection of students. While the majority of schools do an excellent job of providing a safe and supportive environment, there are instances where students may experience bullying or harassment.

School administrators and staff members must be trained to recognize the signs of bullying and take appropriate action to address it. This includes providing a safe space for students to discuss their concerns and offering support and resources as needed.

Denny Wright named Pony coach

Denny Wright, a former player and assistant coach, has been named the new head coach of the Panola College Mustangs' Pony football team. Wright brings a wealth of experience to the role, having played for the Mustangs in the past and coaching the team for several seasons.

Wright's coaching philosophy is centered around teamwork and building a strong bond between players and staff. He believes in fostering a positive environment that encourages growth and development both on and off the field.

Panola County group ‘shoots’ rapids in Arkansas

A group of Panola County residents recently embarked on a journey to Arkansas to conquer the rapids of the Buffalo River. The group, led by guide Mark Davis, set out to experience the thrill of navigating the challenging waters.

Davis, who has guided numerous groups down the Buffalo River, provided expert guidance and ensured the safety of the participants. The group faced several challenges, but their perseverance paid off as they successfully conquered the rapids.
