America needs higher morals

You and the law

In recent years, there has been a lot of talk about the need for higher morals in American society. People have grown increasingly concerned about the decline of moral values, particularly among younger generations. The problem is not new; it has been discussed for decades, but it seems to have reached a new level of seriousness.

To address this issue, we need to promote higher standards of behavior. This means examining our laws and regulations to ensure they reflect the values we hold dear. It also means educating people about the importance of moral principles and encouraging them to live by them.

Sending a plumber to Hawaii

When it comes to morality, there are certain basic principles that everyone should follow. One of these is the principle of fairness. Everyone should be treated fairly, regardless of their background or status. This is true in all aspects of life, from the workplace to the marketplace. It is what makes society work.

Tatum can’t afford more reserve cops

The issue of police funding is a pressing one in many cities across the country. Cities are struggling to find the funds to maintain their police forces, but this is an investment in public safety. We need to find ways to support our police departments and ensure they have the resources they need to do their job.
Beginner tennis scheduled

By Panola College

A beginner tennis tournament is scheduled for the Panola College tennis courts from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. on Thursday. The tournament was announced by Mrs. E. D. May, chairperson of the Panola College Division of Recreation. The tournament is open to players of all ages and skill levels, and there will be a cash prize for the winner. The registration fee is $5 per player, and all proceeds will go towards the maintenance of the tennis courts. Interested players should contact Mrs. E. D. May or any other member of the Panola College Division of Recreation for more information.

Senior LL race loosens

Some senior Little League baseball players were the subject of a story about the recent Little League World Series. The players said they were excited to be competing in the international tournament and hoped to bring home the championship trophy. However, the story concluded that the team was tied with another team and would need to play an extra game to determine the winner.
