City puts bite into new dog ordinance

The City Council of Carthage, Texas, has approved a new ordinance that restricts the feeding of dogs in public places. The ordinance, which took effect on August 15, 2023, aims to prevent the spread of diseases and maintain a clean and healthy environment for all residents.

The new ordinance prohibits the feeding of dogs in public places such as parks, streets, and sidewalks. Violators will be fined up to $500 for each offense. The ordinance also requires dog owners to clean up after their pets and properly dispose of waste.

City officials hope that the new ordinance will help to reduce the number of dog-related health complaints and improve the overall quality of life for residents. They encourage dog owners to follow the new rules and to dispose of waste in designated trash cans.

“We want our residents to enjoy a safe and healthy environment,” said City Manager Jack Johnson. “This new ordinance will help us achieve that goal.”

The new ordinance is part of a broader initiative to improve the city’s public health and safety. Other recent changes include the implementation of a new recycling program and the expansion of the city’s EMS services.

The City Council encourages residents to report any violations of the new ordinance to the police department. Those who violate the new rules may be subject to fines and other penalties.

City officials are committed to maintaining a clean and healthy environment for all residents. They thank the community for its support and cooperation as they work to improve the quality of life in Carthage, Texas.

Tatum mayor 'disappointed' over lack of energy funding

Taxes might drop

Lawton School District Superintendent Kyan Grady says the school district might be able to cut taxes for the next school year. The district is currently preparing its budget for the upcoming fiscal year, and Grady said he is trying to find ways to reduce costs without compromising the quality of education.

"We're looking at every possible way to cut costs and reduce our budget," Grady said. "We'll be making some tough decisions, but our goal is to maintain the quality of education for our students."
