Right to know

"Right to know" is the fundamental philosophy of the American constitution where every citizen has the right to know what is being done in government, the process of any legislation, and how it affects them. It is the basis for our democratic society and the protection of public interest. As citizens, we have the right to know the truth, and it is our responsibility to hold our elected officials accountable for their actions.

The right to know also applies to the city council and the city managers. They need to be transparent about their decisions and actions. As citizens, we have the right to know where our tax dollars are going and what our city council is doing. It is our responsibility to hold them accountable.

The right to know is a fundamental right that every citizen should exercise. We have the power to influence our government and hold them accountable. It is our duty to educate ourselves and our community about the issues that affect us.

Science vs. creationism

By Vic Parker

Grabbing a lot of headlines recently has been the debate over science vs. creationism. This debate is not just about religion versus science, but about how we understand the world around us. It is about how we explain the origins of life and the universe. It is about how we make sense of the world.

The debate over science vs. creationism is not just about the facts, but about the values and beliefs that underlie them. It is about how we define ourselves as a society and as a culture. It is about how we understand our place in the world.

The ultimate question is not whether science or creationism is true, but whether we can reconcile the two. We can do this by recognizing that science is not the only way to understand the world. It is not the ultimate truth. It is one way of understanding the world, and it is not the only way.

We should embrace science and creationism, but we should not try to force them to be the same. They are two different ways of looking at the world, and they are both valid. We should respect each other's views and try to understand them.

Marshall's World

Where the meat came from

One of the things that happens when we don't keep track of where our food comes from is that we lose control over it. We don't know where it comes from, and we don't know how it is treated. We don't know if it is safe to eat.

The problem is that we are not paying attention to where our food comes from. We are not asking the questions that we should be asking. We are not holding our food producers accountable.

We need to start paying attention to where our food comes from. We need to ask the questions that we should be asking. We need to hold our food producers accountable.

The good news is that there are companies that are doing it right. They are paying attention to where their food comes from, and they are treating it properly. They are making sure that it is safe to eat.

We need to support these companies. We need to boycott the companies that are not doing it right. We need to hold them accountable.

The bottom line is that we need to start paying attention to where our food comes from. We need to ask the questions that we should be asking. We need to hold our food producers accountable.

Gifts that keep giving are good Christmas presents

While holiday shopping can be overwhelming, choosing gifts that keep giving can make the season more meaningful. These gifts, whether they are experiences or items that continue to provide value, can leave a lasting impression on the recipients. Consider giving gifts that promote learning, health, or continued enjoyment.

Beckville board meets Monday night

The Beckville board will hold its next meeting on Monday night. During the meeting, updates on various projects and initiatives will be discussed, and decisions will be made that affect the community. The public is welcome to attend and provide feedback or ask questions.

Boost your savings

Big brothers are the right size for giving you a boost up that favorite tree. But, unlike big brothers, neither Social Security nor that old savings plan you set up can be depended upon to be the right size for your retirement years.

Boost your own security by starting a Longview Savings Individual Retirement Account (IRA). A new law, effective January 1, allows you to begin your tax-sheltered contributions anytime before April 15, 1982. For this tax year—even if you are already participating in an employer-sponsored pension plan.

Contribution limits have been boosted too, up to $2,000 tax-deferred for an individual and up to $2,250 for the one-paycheck couple.

Come by the Longview Savings Cartage Office and we'll tell you more.

Make your future secure by investing in an IRA today.
