Shady Groove News

BY SAUL C. CALLOWAY

Stora weather is in action today with the high winds gusting at over 30 miles per hour. The forecast indicates that this condition will last throughout the week. The high winds are expected to continue through the week, with gusts reaching up to 40 miles per hour. This will cause some difficulties for those who are planning to travel or conduct outdoor activities.

The Red Cross has issued a warning to residents to stay indoors and avoid any unnecessary travel. They have also advised people to secure their homes and ensure that their outdoor furniture is safely stored.

Citizens observe hospital’s anniversary

By Bruce Hamilton

About 400 Panda County residents gathered in the hospital’s auditorium Tuesday evening to observe the hospital’s 50th anniversary. The event was the culmination of several weeks of planning by the Chamber of Commerce, which organized the ceremonies.

The celebration began with a parade through the streets of Panda, followed by a community open house at the hospital. Throughout the evening, there were speeches by local politicians, business leaders, and hospital employees.

Several former employees of the hospital were also in attendance, along with members of the community who had received care there over the years.

Onions: The fresh, sweet difference

Onions are one of the most versatile vegetables you can have in your kitchen. They add a unique flavor to many dishes, from classic salads to bold soups. However, if you don’t know how to store them properly, you might end up with a bunch of brown, unpleasant-looking onions. Luckily, there are a few tips and tricks to ensure your onions stay fresh and flavorful for as long as possible. Let’s dive into the secrets behind onion preservation.

Firstly, choose the right variety. It’s important to note that not all onion varieties are created equal. For instance, Vidalia onions have a particularly sweet flavor, whereas shallots have a more delicate and subtle taste. Depending on your recipe, you might want to choose onions that complement the other ingredients.

Secondly, buy only what you need. Don’t be tempted to buy a large bag of onions because they are on sale or because you don’t want the store to be empty. It’s better to be well-fed than to have too many. If you buy too many, you may not be able to use them all before they go bad.

Third, store onions properly. A cool, dry place is the best environment for storing onions. A refrigerator is too cold, and it will cause the onions to spoil faster. A cardboard bag in a dark, cool pantry is an excellent option. If you have a vegetable drawer, that’s great too. Just make sure it’s not too humid or too warm.

Fourth, keep your onions dry. Moisture is the enemy of onions. If you have a plastic bag, make sure it’s not too tight, and make sure to check on it regularly. If the bag gets too wet, the onions will start to rot.

Lastly, use your onions within a reasonable time. Once you open the bag or take a few onions out, use them as soon as possible. A good rule of thumb is to use them within a week, if not sooner.

By following these simple tips, you can ensure that your onions will stay fresh and flavorful for as long as possible. So, the next time you go to the store, remember to choose a good variety, buy only what you need, store them properly, keep them dry, and use them within a reasonable time. Your taste buds will thank you!

CISD calls for $3.8 million bond election

Hall reposts bill, election date set

Local family injured in traffic mishap

Local businesses to close

Farmers LP Gas

Farmers LP Gas Co.

Farmers Auto Salvage

Farmers General Hospital

CISD board members unanimously voted during Tuesday's meeting to add two consultant positions to the CISD's staff list. The consultant positions are needed to handle an expanded program for the school district.

Supervisor Steve Moore, CISD's consultant on special education, stated, "We have reached the point where we have to have someone who is knowledgeable in this area. We need someone who can work with teachers and parents." The district is looking to hire a consultant who specializes in special education, particularly in the area of autism.

"I feel this is the most important time we have ever been in," Moore said. "We have to get this right." The CISD board is expected to vote on the consultant positions at its next meeting.

Meanwhile, the CISD board also discussed the possibility of a bond election to fund school improvements. The board is considering a $3.8 million bond to finance construction of a new building.

"We have been putting off this decision," Moore said. "But we can't delay any longer." The board is expected to vote on the bond election at its next meeting.

Local family injured in traffic mishap

A local family was injured in a traffic mishap this week. The family was en route to a doctor's appointment when their vehicle collided with another car.

"We were going to the doctor's office and we were hit by a car," said the family's spokesperson. "We're lucky to be alive." The family is expected to recover from their injuries.

Local businesses to close

Many local businesses will close their doors on Friday to observe Memorial Day. The businesses include Farmers General Hospital, Farmers Auto Salvage, and Farmers LP Gas Co.

"We're closed for the holiday," said Farmers General Hospital's spokesperson. "We want to give our employees the day off so they can spend it with their families." The hospital is expected to reopen on Monday.

Farmers Auto Salvage and Farmers LP Gas Co. are also closed for the holiday. The businesses are expected to reopen on Thursday.

Free medical services offered at hospital

Farmers General Hospital will be offering free medical services to qualified applicants on Friday. The hospital will be providing free services to anyone who meets the hospital's requirements.

"We want to help as many people as we can," said the hospital's spokesperson. "We have a limited number of slots available, so we encourage everyone to come." The hospital is located at 123 Main St. in Carthage.
