Carthage fire marshal stresses compliance of city ordinance, warns of fire danger
City officials seek industrial waste answers

He said officials were pleased that the recycling program was now taking 50 percent of the local population's waste. But he said that in the past, the city had not been able to produce the same amount of waste, and the city had been forced to dispose of it elsewhere. He also said that the city had to invest in new equipment and infrastructure to handle the increased waste. However, he added, he was confident that the city could meet the challenge and achieve the goals set by the state for recycling programs.

The city council has approved a plan to increase the recycling rate from 40 percent to 75 percent by 2025. It has also established goals for reducing the amount of waste sent to landfills by 5 percent per year.

Carrollton City Council member John Doe said the city was making progress, but it had a long way to go. "We have a long way to go, but we're making progress," he said. "We're working hard to meet the state's recycling goals, and we're making good progress." Doe said the city had already increased its recycling rate from 40 percent to 45 percent in the past year. He added that the city had a long way to go to meet the state's goal of 75 percent by 2025.

"Consistent positive results over the next several years could get the EPA off of everyone's back."
The Arab terrorists: How they view Americans in their community

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor,

I have been very concerned with the recent events in the Middle East. It seems that the Arab nations are becoming increasingly hostile towards the United States. I believe that this is a result of the United States' support of Israel. I feel that we need to take a stronger stance against the Arab nations and their rhetoric.

Sincerely,

A tribute to a father

Young Carthage visitor shares feelings in coping with a great loss

My father was diagnosed with cancer in the early 1970s. He died just a few years later at the age of 43. I was very young at the time, but the experience of losing my father has had a profound impact on my life. I felt he was a great loss to me personally. I would like to share my story in the hope that it might provide comfort to others who are dealing with similar situations.

I miss him very much and think about him often. He was a very special person and I will always treasure the memories we shared.

Love,

McClure, Mark Baker, Eula Lewis & J. Whitehead

Recognizes members' birthdays

The Association of American Professional Rodeo Riders (AAPR) will be celebrating its 35th birthday this year. The AAPR was founded on March 8, 1940, by a group of professional rodeo performers who became dissatisfied with the conditions under which they were working.

The AAPR was formed to advocate for better working conditions and to promote the sport of rodeo. Over the years, the AAPR has grown into a respected organization with members throughout the United States.

AAPR members are committed to preserving the traditions of rodeo and ensuring the safety and well-being of both the athletes and the animals involved in the sport. The AAPR continues to work towards improving the standards of professional rodeo, both in the United States and internationally.

The AAPR holds annual events and competitions, providing opportunities for performers to showcase their skills and for rodeo fans to come together and celebrate the sport they love. These events include both junior and professional divisions, offering a wide range of events from bareback riding and barrel racing to bull riding and team roping.

The AAPR also supports rodeo education and development, providing resources and training for athletes at all levels. The organization is dedicated to promoting rodeo as both a sport and a lifestyle, with a focus on preserving the rich history and culture that define the sport.

AARP hears health related speakers

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will be hosting a series of health-related speakers this year. The speakers will cover a variety of topics related to health and wellness.

The speakers will be sharing their expertise on a range of subjects, including nutrition, exercise, mental health, and disease prevention. The AARP is committed to empowering its members to live healthy, active, and fulfilling lives.

These events are an opportunity for AARP members to engage with experts and gain valuable insights into maintaining a healthy lifestyle.

The AARP is also dedicated to raising awareness about important health issues and advocating for policies that promote health and well-being for all Americans.

On Thursday we got another surprise when we opened the mailbox. We came home and saw that the Christmas tree light was out of order and had to be replaced. The tree was beautiful but needed repair. We spent the day fixing it and it now looks better than ever. A big thank you to the repairmen who fixed it for us.

Most of the Tatum citizens are looking forward to the upcoming holiday season. The weather has been nice and everyone is enjoying the outdoor activities. The town is decorated for the holidays and the spirit of giving is in the air. We can't wait to see what everyone has planned for the season.
