To the relief of Long Branch residents, the post office will remain in their community.

"Absolutely, it was a relief," Evans said Thursday. "I've been here for 20 years, and I'm happy to stay."

The community rallied behind the closure of the office in anticipation of the showdown. In the wake of the decision, the Post Office has already been transferred to Poultney, and the postmistress has been reassigned.

"I'm looking forward to spending more time with my family," Evans said.

In other parts of the country, similar decisions have been made, leading to protests and rallies. In Poultney, the community has banded together to keep the post office open.

"We're not going to let them close it," said one resident.

Pana General Hospital and Allied Health System officials offered no definitive answer on what changes, if any, might have to be made to the hospital, which is currently struggling to stay afloat.

Despite this, Kelly, who has been a long-time employee, is still seeking a new position in the community.

"I'm just looking for a new opportunity," she said.

Absentee ballots aumento among counties in the District Court system. Some counties have reported a significant increase in absentee voting, while others have seen a decrease.

Panola County, which historically had low absentee rates, saw a 50% increase in absentee voting.

"It's been a challenging process," said County Clerk Kim Thompson.

In other counties, the increase has ranged from 30% to 80%.

"We're just trying to make it as easy as possible for people," said Thompson.

"We're making progress," said County Administrator Mary Smith.

T-Wheeler: Worries about Puppy Chow, jellybeans and a Congress go unanswered

If I recall correctly, there was a period when Puppy Chow and jellybeans were all the rage. But I seem to recall that Congress really got into Puppy Chow and jellybeans with a vengeance during the Christmas season. We recall that Puppy Chow and jellybeans were consumed by the millions in Congress. We find it interesting that Congress has never been known to eat Puppy Chow and jellybeans during the Christmas season. It was only during winter recess that they indulged in Puppy Chow and jellybeans. We can only conclude that Puppy Chow and jellybeans are a Christmas tradition.

On the other hand, I do recall from my recollections that Puppy Chow and jellybeans were consumed in Congress during the Christmas season. We cannot recall any evidence that Congress has ever consumed Puppy Chow and jellybeans during the Christmas season. We can only conclude that Puppy Chow and jellybeans are a Christmas tradition.

In conclusion, we can only surmise that Congress has always consumed Puppy Chow and jellybeans during the Christmas season. We cannot recall any evidence that Congress has ever consumed Puppy Chow and jellybeans during the Christmas season. We can only conclude that Puppy Chow and jellybeans are a Christmas tradition.

A dog's best friend is more than just a master

By Jerry Leigh Bell

It was not unusual for 11-year-old Elizabeth Scates to be seen with a bend-over blue dog named "Big Boy". But after Big Boy was killed in a fire, Elizabeth was left heartbroken.

At a recent reunion, Elizabeth visited the church where she had grown up, and saw Big Boy on the bulletin board. She was so happy to see him again, but soon realized that he was no longer with her.

Elizabeth's heart was broken, but she knew that Big Boy had found a new home. She decided to visit the church and see if Big Boy was still there. She was surprised to find that he was still there, and that he was doing well.

Elizabeth was grateful to have Big Boy back, and she knew that he was a part of her family. She decided to visit the church every week to see Big Boy and make him feel loved.

In the end, Elizabeth realized that Big Boy was more than just a dog, he was her best friend and he would always be with her.

Working mothers: Job related factors affect families

By Annicee E. Wintle

Pamela Rose, a working mother, found that her children were having problems with each other. She asked her husband and her mother for help. However, they were not very comfortable in giving advice.

"Your advice is not always the best," Pamela said. "I don't want to get in trouble with my children."

"How can I help you, dear?" her husband asked.

"I want to know how to prevent problems in my children. Should I have a problem solving class for my children?"

"Yes, you can have a problem solving class at home," her husband said. "You can also consult a professional like a psychologist or a counselor."

"But I don't want to spend too much money," Pamela said. "Is there any free help available?"

"You can try looking for free classes in your community," her husband said. "You can also ask your children's school for help."

"I'll try," Pamela said. "Thank you for your advice."

Carterville, Illinois

Dear Editor:

I was interested in your article on the history of the Libbers family in Carterville, Illinois. The information you provided is valuable for our community. I would like to share another piece of information about the family's history.
