An Energy Efficient Home

It's the Right Choice

Years ago, solar energy was concerned with energy efficiency. Today, many smart homes use energy-efficient appliances and systems to conserve energy and save money. In the market for a new home, be sure to include SWFCO's recommendations for energy efficiency. That's smart building the energy-efficient heat pump for economic comfort. Cooling and heating are just one way to reach your home's energy efficiency goals.

Pollution violators fined

The Railroad Commission and the Georgia Water Quality Control Board fined two fanners in the Panola County area recently. A fine of $1,250 was imposed on the farm of Robert C. McCulloch for a violation of the state's Clean Water Act. The farm is located near the town of Summerville.

Other farmers also have been fined for various violations of the Clean Water Act. These include:

1. Robert E. Jones, $500 fine for discharging runoff water into a stream
2. J. D. Brown, $750 fine for discharging sewage into a stream
3. W. H. Martin, $1,000 fine for discharging chemicals into a stream

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER TELLS OF FINE

F. V. T. Ellison, a local law enforcement officer, said that the fines were necessary to enforce the Clean Water Act. "These farmers must realize that they are responsible for protecting the water quality in our area," he said. "We can't afford to have polluted water streams."
Unfair trade practices adding to deficits

By David H. Stern

We have been told that the United States has a trade deficit. I understand that the deficit comes from the net difference between the amount of goods we buy from abroad and the amount we sell. In fact, the deficit is substantial, amounting to $100 billion. It is a large sum of money that may be adding to those problems.

Our trade deficit is projected to increase by $20 billion each year for 10 years. This is due to rising imports and slower export growth. The deficit causes some problems, but we must also consider the benefits of trade.

High School band travels to Oklahoma

Up at 5:30 a.m. each day, band members load up in four vans bound for the airport. The van ride lasts about two hours, and the cost of the trip is $800 per student. Upon arrival at the airport, the band members check in and go through security. Once inside the terminal, they board their flight and travel to Oklahoma City. The flight takes about an hour and a half.

Once in Oklahoma, the band members are greeted by local officials who drive them to their hotel. The hotel is located near a park, and the band members have some time to explore the area before settling in for the night. The next day, the band members perform at a local high school in the morning and then travel to another school in the afternoon. After the performance, they return to the hotel and have some free time before dinner.

The following day, the band members perform at a local fairground and then travel to another city for a concert in the evening. After the concert, the band members return to the hotel and have some free time before dinner.

The final day, the band members perform at a local university and then travel back to the airport for their flight home. The flight takes about an hour and a half, and upon arrival, the band members are greeted by their parents and friends. The trip was a great opportunity for the band members to perform and to experience a different culture.

Drilling applications increase

A total of 743 drilling applications were approved by the Texas Railroad Commission in June. The number of drilling permits rose to 690 in June, the highest level since December 1984.

So for this year, the number of drilling permits issued is 2,556, up from 1,555 last year.

The total number issued to date includes 306 applications for injection wells, 3 for gas wells, and 2 for oil wells. The remaining 2,124 applications are for drilling permission for both injection and gas wells.

The data shows that the number of drilling applications has been increasing steadily since the beginning of the year.

Peace named Volunteer of Month

By Marty L. Betts

These aren't easy times to be a volunteer at the Panola County Animal Shelter. The shelter, which is run by Marty L. Betts, is located in the Spring Hill area. The shelter is currently home to over 100 animals, including dogs, cats, rabbits, and birds. Betts said the shelter is in need of volunteers to help with daily tasks such as feeding, cleaning, and walking the animals.

Betts said that the shelter is open to anyone who is interested in volunteering, regardless of age or experience. "We welcome anyone who wants to help out, even if they don't have much experience," Betts said. "We provide training for all our volunteers, so anyone can help make a difference in the lives of these animals."

Betts said that the shelter is also looking for volunteers to help with fundraising efforts. "We're always looking for ways to raise money to help care for our animals," Betts said. "Any amount helps, whether it's a donation, volunteering your time, or helping us spread the word about our shelter."

Anyone interested in volunteering at the Panola County Animal Shelter can contact Marty L. Betts at 903-758-5555 or by email at MartyL.Betts@panolacounty.org. The shelter is located at 100 Shelter Rd., Spring Hill, and is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Know Your Heritage

By Bill Green

The history of the Panola County Fair is rich and diverse. The fair, which has been held annually since 1900, has played a significant role in the community's cultural and social life. The fair was founded by a group of local farmers who wanted to provide an opportunity for people to come together and celebrate the bounty of the land.

The fair has a long tradition of showcasing local agricultural and artisanal products. From the early days, the fair featured competitions for the best vegetables, fruits, and livestock, and these competitions continue to be a highlight of the event today. The fair has also been a platform for showcasing local crafts and art, with vendors selling everything from quilts to pottery.

Throughout the years, the fair has evolved to include a variety of other events and activities. In recent years, the fair has added a midway with rides and games, a petting zoo, and a livestock auction. These additions have helped to make the fair an even greater draw for families and individuals of all ages.

The fair is held annually from October 26 to October 30. For more information, visit the Panola County Fair website at www.panolacountyfair.com.

Notice of Proposed Tax Rate

The Beckville Independent School District proposes to keep the 1985 tax rate at 58 cents as established for 1984. The maintenance of this same tax rate is necessary because state revenue for Beckville Schools has been reduced for the next two years. Persons who have the same property values as 1984 should have the same or slightly higher taxes in 1985.

Brown helps with missions

By Rev. William Brown

Brown, a retired minister at First Baptist Church, has been involved in missions work for over 35 years. Brown has traveled to over 20 countries, including India, Africa, and South America, to help those in need.

One of Brown's most recent missions was to help build a school in India. Brown worked alongside local volunteers to help build the school, which will provide education to hundreds of children. Brown said that he was moved by the experience and continues to be involved in missions work.

Brown is now working on a project to help build a new church in Africa. Brown said that he hopes to complete the project within the next year.

Sacred Harp singing convention held, officers elected

By Rev. William Brown

The Sacred Harp singing convention was held at First Baptist Church in Panola County on August 18, 1888. The convention was attended by over 500 people from across the country.

The convention began with a worship service, which included singing and prayer. The worship service was followed by a business meeting, where officers for the next year were elected.

The convention ended with a closing worship service, which included singing and prayer. The convention was a great success, and the officers elected are committed to continuing the tradition of Sacred Harp singing.

Strength For Living

At the ecumenical center for the mentally ill in Panola County, the Rev. Mike Rivers, a Lutheran pastor, was speaking of the strength that can come from living a life of faith.

"I was once a schizo," Rivers said, "but I found strength in my faith. I started attending church and found comfort in the community of believers."

Rivers said that he started to see his mental illness in a new light.

"I began to see that my illness was not something to be ashamed of," Rivers said. "I began to see that it was a part of who I was, a part of my identity."

Rivers said that he found strength in his faith and in the support of his community.

"I found strength in my faith and in the support of my community," Rivers said. "I found strength in the fact that I am not alone in my struggles."

Rivers said that he continues to find strength in his faith today.

"I continue to find strength in my faith," Rivers said. "I continue to see that my illness is not something to be ashamed of. I continue to see that I am not alone in my struggles."
