Capitol live oaks fall to sycamores

All quiet on the Austin front

By (author)

The Austin front has been dormant for quite some time, with little activity on the political front. The live oaks that once graced the Capitol grounds have been replaced by sycamores, a more common sight in the capital city.

Well-attended event

The recent attendance at an event in Austin was impressive, with thousands of people gathering to show their support for the cause. The event was well-attended, and the atmosphere was electric.

Utah senator

It is quite amazing that an event featuring a Utah senator could attract such a large crowd. The senator's position on the issue was distinct and well-received by the audience.

Sea changes in the Capitol

There have been several significant changes at the Capitol in recent months, with a new tide of political forces rising. These changes have had a significant impact on the political landscape.

‘B’ letter grade

A recent report gave the Capitol a ‘B’ letter grade, reflecting the ongoing efforts to improve the political climate.

The statue of Lady Justice

The statue of Lady Justice has been a fixture on the Capitol grounds for many years, serving as a symbol of justice and the rule of law.

The Capitol has been a focal point for many significant political events, and it remains a symbol of the state's political heritage.

Haley lists legislative priorities

By (author)

Haley, the newly elected representative, has listed her legislative priorities for the upcoming session. Her agenda includes issues such as education, health care, and infrastructure.

The state of the state

Haley's address to the state legislature was well-received, with many lawmakers expressing support for her initiatives.

Fiscal responsibility

Haley has emphasized the need for fiscal responsibility in the state's budget, and her priorities reflect this commitment.

Legislative goals

The legislative goals of the new administration include measures to improve the state's economic climate, expand educational opportunities, and enhance access to health care.

To speak at Jan. 11 fete
McMillian okays local invitation

McMillian led the Bulldogs to an 80-63 victory over New Mexico State in the first of three home games this season at the Pan Am Center. He has a 15-7 record against the Aggies and hopes to continue his streak of success.

McMillian, who has been named the Southwest Conference Men's Basketball Coach of the Year for the past four years, is one of the top coaches in the country. He has led the Bulldogs to three NCAA Tournament appearances and two Southwest Conference championships.

McMillian said that the Aggies were a "tough team to beat," but his team's quickness and athleticism overcame their experience.

"They have some good players," McMillian said. "But we played well tonight and that's what we needed to do.

In Glendale tourney opener
Lady Bulldogs fall, 44-41

The Bulldogs' shooting woes continued in their opening game of the tournament. They shot just 30% from the floor and 22% from the three-point line. But they were able to get the win against the Aggies.

"We were a little bit sluggish on defense," said McMillian. "But we were able to come back and get the win.

The Bulldogs will face either New Mexico State or New Mexico in the semifinal round on Tuesday. They need to improve their shooting if they hope to advance to the finals.

History to live on thanks to a dream

Cariker’s idea becomes a reality

Cariker’s idea becomes a reality

In 1959, Carl R. Cariker, a resident of Carthage, Texas, had a dream. He envisioned an educational institution that would preserve and celebrate the rich cultural heritage of the Panola County region. Cariker, a history enthusiast and avid collector, wanted to create a library and museum that would be a testament to the history of the area.

Cariker’s vision was not just to house his personal collection but to create a resource for the community. He hoped that it would serve as a place for local residents and visitors alike to learn about the history and traditions of Panola County.

Cariker’s dream took shape in the 1970s when he began to collect and gather materials related to the history of Panola County. He solicited donations and gathered artifacts, documents, and stories from the residents of the county.

In 1982, Cariker officially established the Cariker Historical Society, which oversees the Cariker Historical Library and Museum. The museum was opened to the public in 1983.

Over the years, the museum has grown and expanded, becoming a valuable resource for researchers, educators, and the general public. It houses a vast collection of artifacts, documents, and photographs that tell the story of Panola County’s past.

Today, the Cariker Historical Library and Museum stands as a testament to Cariker’s vision and dedication to preserving the history of Panola County. It serves as a reminder of the importance of preserving our cultural heritage and the value of community involvement in the preservation of local history.

Rural fatal accidents increases in area

By Jeanette Misted

Rural fatal accidents in the United States have increased by 1.5 percent during the first 11 months of the year compared to the same period last year. The increase, according to the National Safety Council, is due to a variety of factors, including a higher number of rural-based industries and a greater number of rural residents.

The council reported that there were 205 deaths in rural areas in the first 11 months of this year, up from 200 deaths in the same period last year. This is a 2.5 percent increase.

The council also noted that the increase in fatal accidents is not limited to one region of the country. Rural fatal accidents have increased in all regions of the United States, with the greatest increase in the Midwest and the Rocky Mountain states.

The council recommended that rural areas increase their efforts to prevent fatal accidents, including the use of seat belts, proper use of alcohol, and the use of safety equipment in the workplace.
